

You Need a Tonic

There are times in every woman's life when she needs a tonic to help her over the hard places. When that time comes to you, you know what tonic to take—Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, which act gently, yet surely, on the weakened womanly organs, and helps build them back to strength and health. It has benefited thousands and thousands of weak, ailing women in its past half century of wonderful success, and it will do the same for you.

You can't make a mistake in taking

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Miss Amelia Wilson, R. F. D. No. 4, Alma, Ark., says: "I think Cardui is the greatest medicine on earth, for women. Before I began to take Cardui, I was so weak and nervous, and had such awful dizzy spells and a poor appetite. Now I feel as well and as strong as I ever did, and can eat most anything." Begin taking Cardui today. Sold by all dealers.

One Experience Convinced Me of its Value

"One of our salesmen demonstrated the value of the Long Distance Telephone to us. He was at Huntsville, Ala.; and upon his own responsibility put in Long Distance calls for fifteen merchants within a radius of several hundred miles.

"In less than one hour he had sold 2100 barrels of flour at a total cost to us of less than six dollars.

"Since then we have applied the Long Distance Bell Telephone to every feature of our business with most profitable results. The service is fine, the rates are reasonable and there is more satisfaction in one Long Distance Telephone talk than in half a dozen letters".

GOOD THINGS PREPARED FOR THE TABLE

Good fruit and vegetables well canned makes winter's table the delight the housewife likes it to be.

At a demonstration meeting in June this picture was taken. Cherries, strawberries, gooseberries, beans and a host of other things that grow on farms were available for canning. To put up good fruit and vegetables requires skill. There are easy ways of doing it, and economical ways, too. To find out these things and to present them to the women of the state is the mission of those in home demonstration work. They recognize that many housekeepers are doing excellent work. Their effort is simply to "make the best better." If you are interested in any matters of the home on which you have doubts write to the Extension Division, University of Tennessee, Knoxville. There those who have worked longest on some of these home problems will receive your letter and answer it as completely as they can.

Leach Hardware Company has been conducting a demonstration of the Majestic Range this week and they have been assisted by J. T. Cooper who is the demonstrator for that well advertised range. In a contest early in the week in which several children wrote essays on the Jestic prizes were awarded to Mary McQueen and Joe Bowers. And on Wednesday an immense cake was baked and when cool was placed under a plank and some twenty or more ladies stood on it with their combined weight. It was mashed flat, but when placed in the oven of the Majestic it soon rose to its former tightness. The demonstration has attracted unusual attention and big crowds have visited the Leach store.

One of the most profitable crops The Falcon has yet heard of was reported to us a few days ago. Josiah Q. Shaw planted last September one third of an acre in bur clover and gathered this spring 107.8 bushels of seed therefrom, and sold the entire lot at an average price of $1 per bushel, or $107.80 for the crop. His entire expense for planting, seed, advertising and harvesting was $10, giving him a profit of almost one hundred dollars from one third of an acre. It was at the H. S. Shaw place in the southern part of Somerville and was seen by many while it was growing. The seed left on the ground are now germinating and much of the clover is hand high, assuring a fine crop for next year, and this without the land being touched since the last crop was harvested. Can any crop be more profitable?

THE YOUNG BREEDERS STANDARD OF PURE-BREDS

Registered Stock in Hands of Beginners Are Mostly Under Weight—Should Be Weighed Often.

(By R. M. Murphy, Division of Extension, University of Tennessee.)

Every day some one is embarking in the purebred live stock business. Frequently he knows very little by actual contact with the breed of his choice. How is he to know when he has a Percheron, a Shorthorn, or a Duroc Jersey? Of course he has the registration papers, but is that sufficient?

Every day the men of the Division of Extension of the College of Agriculture are called upon to look over some hopeful young breeder's animals or herd of which he is rightfully proud. More frequently than otherwise we are disappointed, even though we do not tell him so. Almost invariably if he has purchased immature animals in the beginning, his stock is undersized. This simply because he has not been in the habit of feeding the common stock, and does not appreciate the necessity of it here.

I was called out to look over a young Percheron the other day, coming three years old, and found a very nice Percheron color, bone, foot and draft conformation, but an animal weighing only 1,000 pounds. In weight he was in the roadster class. He should have been weighing 1,500 at least. He would have been a disappointment to any Percheron breeder. The only trouble was lack of feed, and the reason he had not had it was simply because his owner did not know how big a Percheron should be.

In case of purebred animals, and more particularly perhaps, the heavy horse and the meat producing animals, the most important standard for the young breeder to establish is that of weight. He should find out how much his young animals should weigh at six months, twelve months, eighteen months, two years, etc., and see that they come up to this standard.

The most common criticism of purebred stock in the hands of amateurs is that they are undersized.

"WHO GOT THE MONEY"

Not the Produce Dealer, But the Business Farmer.

(By Wm. A. Schoenfeld, Division of Extension, U. of T.)

When your Irish potato crop is sold, and you compare the price received from your local merchant or dealer in farm produce with that paid by the consumer, you naturally wonder where the difference in price went to; in other words, "Who Got the Money?" You can get some of this money by doing as this farmer did.

Mr. John Doe, who is a farmer near Chattanooga, Tennessee, got a nice portion of the difference just mentioned by grading his four hundred bushel potato crop before he offered it for sale. At the time he marketed his crop, ungraded potatoes were selling for fifty-five cents, graded for seventy-five, and culls for forty-five cents a bushel in Chattanooga. Ungraded potatoes are usually "field run stock." Graded potatoes are medium in size, smooth, clean and free from scab. Culls are the potatoes left after "field run" stock has been graded.

Using the figures just given, what did Mr. Doe get for the extra trouble of grading his potatoes? The grading, by the way, was done on days when field work was out of the question, because of bad weather, hence did not interfere with crop production.

Four hundred bushels of "field run" potatoes were graded into 347 bushels of good standard potatoes, and 53 bushels of culls.

447 bu. graded potatoes at 75c per bu. $260.25
53 bu. cull potatoes at 45c per bu. 23.85

Total price received for 400 bu. crop $284.10

Now, if Mr. Doe had simply marketed his potatoes in a "field run" condition, i. e., ungraded, he would have received (400 bu. ungraded potatoes at 55c per bu.), $220.

This makes a difference of $64.10 in his favor.

Assuming that it took him three days at one dollar a day, then three days labor sorting potatoes at $1 per day, $3.

If the gross profit for grading was $64.10
And the labor charge 3.00

Then the net profit $61.10

If Mr. Doe had not sorted these potatoes, then he would have received $64.10 less for his crop.

The question would then be, "Who got the money?" Either the consumer would have paid less for the ungraded potatoes or the dealer would have graded the potatoes himself. In that case the dealer would have made the profit of $64.10.

There are lessons to be learned from Mr. Doe's experience, namely:

1. He utilized idle hours on his farm to his financial gain.
2. He earned a nice profit on his marketing ability.
3. He learned that there were other ways in increasing farm profits without increasing his crop yields.
4. He learned that the market is willing to pay liberally for standardized farm products.

The University of Tennessee, through its Division of Extension, stands ready to assist all legitimate enterprises seeking to improve the market standards of the Tennessee farm products.

PLANT LOCUST FOR POSTS

(By Charles A. Keffler, Division of Extension, University of Tennessee.)

There is hardly a farm in Tennessee that does not contain a few acres that can be devoted to the growing of trees to be used for fence posts. There are odd corners, irregular pieces of ground that can not conveniently be embodied in fields, steep hillsides, gullies, even the best of farms have small areas that for one reason or another can not be profitably cultivated. Plant them to black locust, or other good post timber.

Trees are sometimes planted along highways, and used as living fence posts, but this is a poor plan because too much of the adjoining fields, which is often the best on the farm, is taken up by their shade and roots; the land two to four rods into the field is greatly reduced in crop-production by the trees.

Black locust is the best species to use for posts, because it is very durable in contact with the soil, and is a tree of the most rapid growth. The seedlings can be bought of western nurserymen for less than two dollars per thousand. They are easily grown. Gather the seed now, thresh them from the pods with a flail, and keep dry until late March. Just before planting your boiling water over the seeds, and leave stand until the water is cold; then plant either where the tree is to stand or in thick drills, where they should be cultivated one year, and then transplanted to their permanent place. If sown in drills, sow very thick in a drill about four inches wide, to prevent too great growth the first year. As soon as the seedling is transplanted cut the top off at the ground to secure a vigorous shoot.

In good soil locusts will be twelve to fifteen feet high when three years old, and if cut at the ground will make excellent tomato or vine stakes, and the shoot from the root will make a wonderful growth. Planted four by four feet, fence post size is reached in ten years or less, and the plantation is continuously productive. A better use for odd corners, steep lands, or eroded lands hardly can be found.
